A Book Report

A book report is an opportunity to give your opinion or reaction about a book you have read. It can be as short as a single paragraph, or it can be longer. First read your book carefully. You could take notes to help you remember important points. Decide if you want to write about the plot, characters, setting or theme of the story. Write a topic sentence for each paragraph and include supporting ideas within the paragraph. Include the title of the book and the author's name in the report. Close with your opinion of the book and whether or not you would recommend it to others.
